

Market Analysis

- Unit Price is the most relevant feature that determines and affects the result of our analysis. Temperature also plays an important role, with quantity, should also be taken care of.
- It is advised that the unit price should be properly set up, keeping it low, increases the sales. The temperature at which the product is stored must also be taken into account.

